K.t. Fitzgerald For those of you defending her twitter comments and saying they aren't racist or implying we just dont get her humor. ...go back and read her comments. Substite "black" for "white". If you still think her comments are not racist, then make sure you defend the stupid people that make disgusting comments about black people.

Tom Smith The University of Memphis ought to be ashamed for releasing this status, in such a way, without a broader context. Moreover, the outpouring of white supremacist, misogynist commentary you've allowed to be posted as comments, AND REMAIN on this status merely underscores this point. The institution deserves to be censured for your disregard for academic freedom and base pandering. Disgraceful.

JoAnna Boudreaux Hamadeh Dr. Robinson is a tremendous loss to the University. She is an amazing scholar, writer, Professor and mentor. Those of us that know her and have taken classes from her recognize that she has been slandered and unfairly attacked. Her statements have been grossly twisted and taken out of context by the right-wing media. It is shameful that her University has not come to her defense.

Wesley Morgan Paraham Will someone tell these people that it's not racism when black people talk openly about white supremacy and the effect it has? Nothing about these tweets are racist. They are reactions to systematic injustice. So YES, if this were a white person talking about people of color, that would be racism. It's not that hard to understand.
